

EuroTransBio Virtual matchmaking

22-23 November

The Council of European BioRegions is proud to be working with EuroTransBio to deliver a virtual matchmaking event on 22-23 November for the forthcoming proposal deadline (January 31st).

About the matchmaking programme

This programme invites SMEs and Research organisations from ETB eligible regions/countries to submit profiles and project ideas on the CEBR website.

Partnering requests will then be received from potential partners across Europe and accepted meetings will be scheduled for 30 minute telephone/Skype calls on November 22-23.

Participating organisations will also be invited to take part in 2 supporting webinars, on the ETB funding programme (mid November) and proposal development (mid-December).

This programme is FREE OF CHARGE.

Get started

- If you are an organisation listed on the EuroTransBio database, you are invited to submit profiles and project ideas online here NOW!
- Profiles will start to be published from October 26th and partnering requests open for you and other ETB eligible organisations.
- You will receive all partnering requests and accepted meetings will be scheduled for a mutually available time on 22-23 November
- All participating organisations will be invited to take part in the supporting webinars

Any questions?

We would be delighted to assist with all queries regarding the partnering programme. Please contact info@cebr.net for all support and if you have further queries about EuroTransBio, please contact the ETB Secretariat or your local ETB contact point.

About CEBR

The Council of European BioRegions is a network of life science clusters, linked through their cluster managers or primary SME support contact. Our mission is to defragment biotechnology across Europe. Delivering virtual partnering for EuroTransBio enables us to support SMEs in building international collaborations and we look forward to a successful partnering programme.
